M2 Droit de la concurrence et des contrats

Master's degree

Specialisations International law and European law | Business Law

Language(s) of instruction

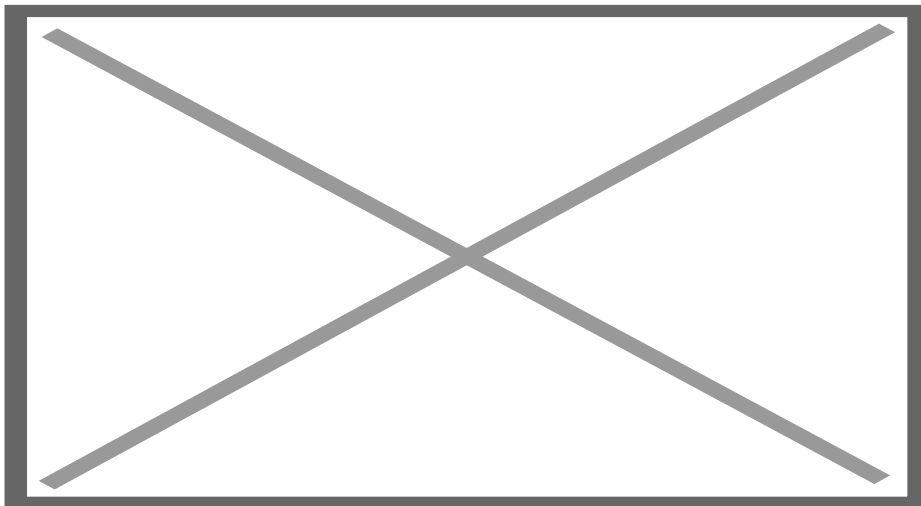

English French

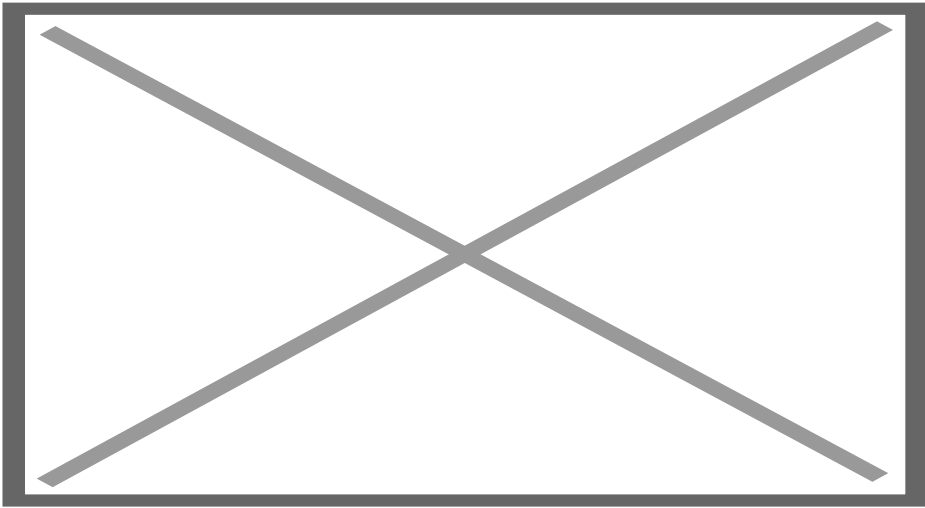

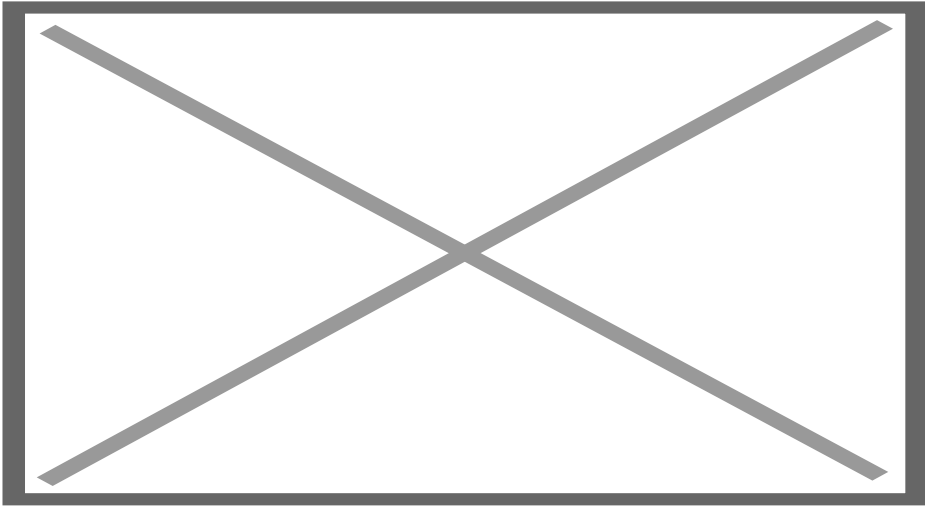

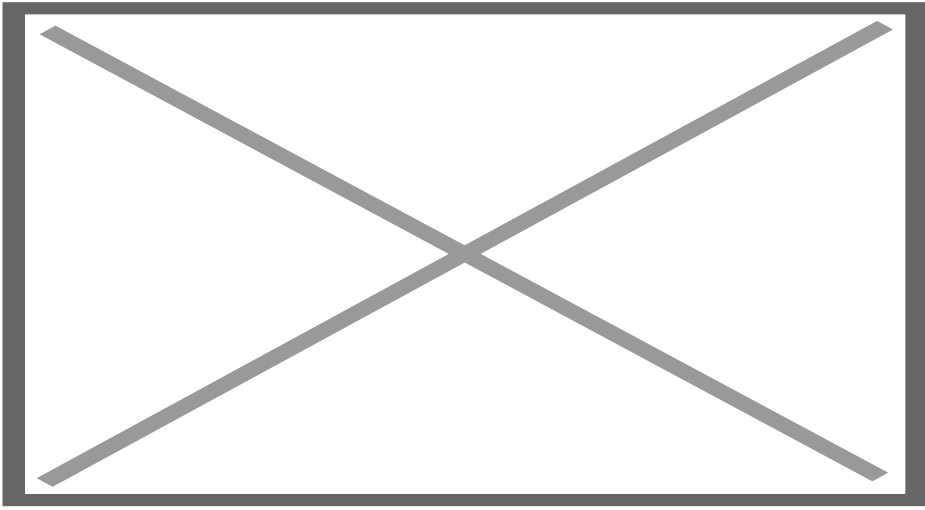

An excellent and renowned programme that allows students to acquire recognised expertise in a sought-after specialisation such as common law and offers varied and progressive career prospects in France and internationally, in companies, law firms and institutions (European Commission, Competition Authority, DGCCRF, etc.). The programme is also particularly well suited to preparing a doctoral thesis and a career as a lecturer and researcher.

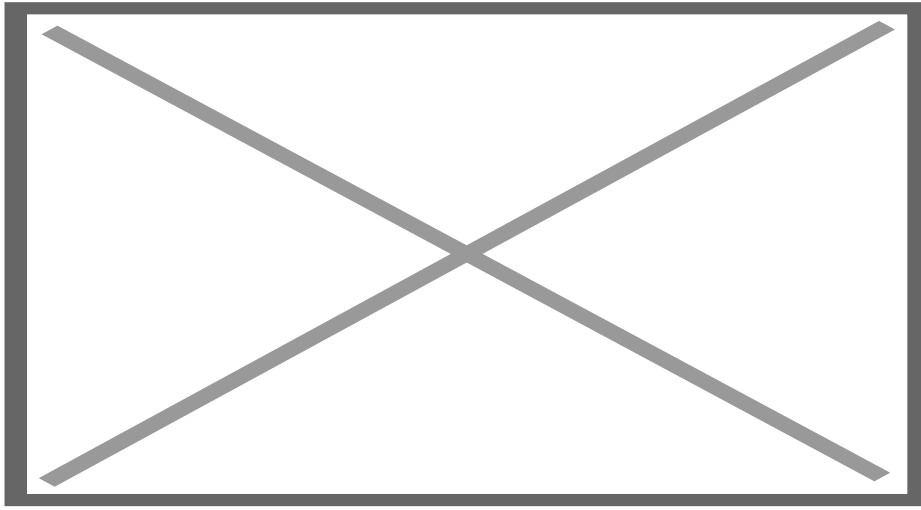

The Master's programme offers training that combines fundamental and practical teaching, delivered by academics or practitioners, depending on the subject. Some modules are specifically devoted to litigation or practice, in order to promote practical learning. In addition, there are professional practice modules comprising workshops, projects, an internship and a dissertation.

Présentation

Skills

- Proficiency in French and European competition law (including its economic aspects) and contract law applicable to businesses, whether substantive rules or litigation.
- Ability to reason and argue legally
- Ability to analyse and deal with novel legal issues
- Ability to engage in dialogue with economists and have a satisfactory understanding of the economic aspects of a legal case
- Proficiency in public speaking
- Professional use of written and spoken English
- Ability to work in a team and position oneself in a professional environment

Objectives

- Train high-level lawyers who can easily integrate into companies, law firms or institutions, or prepare a doctoral thesis before pursuing a career as a lecturer-researcher
- Acquire advanced specialisation in competition law in all its diversity and deepen essential knowledge of contract law, whether in common law or in business-oriented areas (distribution, business contracts)
- Acquire solid knowledge of competition procedure and economics
- Enable practical application and concrete learning in both oral and written communication (negotiation, drafting of business contracts, contractual techniques, conclusions, pleadings)
- Develop personal and professional skills (know-how, interpersonal skills and communication skills)

- Provide each student with close support for their career plans
