Learning outcome targets

Aimed at young designers and engineers, the purpose of this course and the subjects it offers is to educate designers-researchers so that they are able to pursue a doctorate, teach in the major design schools or establish research and development centres in the private sector. Comprising a Research in Design course, a Higher Education Teacher Training course and an Engineering in Design Strategy course, this degree brings together the skills of several major institutions within this discipline and offers a wide range of training suitable for this subject area’s current and future context.
