prepare students to master the subjects of law and economics

The double degree in Economics and law is the result of a reflection on calls from students and professionals for people with qualifications in both law and economics. The course is built around a double major: law and economics. This double degree responds to this demand by offering a course based on the acquisition of both law and economics in a cross-cutting and complementary approach. By the end of each year, students must have mastered both legal and economic exercises, in addition to their theoretical knowledge.
